There was quite a serious collision between a motorcycle and an auto-mobile opposite Winthrop college last Sunday afternoon that came near re sulting in a tragedy. Mr. O. E. As Mr. Wilkins was turning his machine preparatory to starting back to Yorkpreparatory to starting back to lork-ville, the motorcycle came along at a high rate of speed, and struck the au-tomobile a sidewise blow. An electric headlight, airbrakes and watchful engineer saved the life of a drunk man on the outskirts of Cam-den Saturday night. Southern passenger train No. 17, Columbia to Yorkville, had stopped at the Seaboard crossing at Camden. Starting again, but be-fore attaining full speed, the engineer, aided by the electric headlight, saw a man with his face in his hands, sitting on the track ahead apparently asleep. The engineer blew his whistle, but the man failed to move. The airbrakes were applied and the engine was brought to a standstill within ten feet of the man on the track. The engineer and fireman jumped down and ap-proaching the man, tried to wake him up, but there was nothing doing. They carried him forty or fifty yards from the track and laid him down to sleep off his drunk and the train passed of its way. "The electric headlight saved that man's life and incidentally saved the Southern a lawsuit and a bunch of damage money," said the man who

GREAT BRITAIN CALLED DOWN Strong Representations on Interfer

ences With Neutral Trade. The United States in its latest note to Great Britain, made public in Washington last Saturday, covering exhaustively British interference with American trade since the beginning of the Europeon war, declares that the socalled blockade instituted by the Allies against enemy countries on March 11, "ineffective, illegal and indefensible." Notice is served that the American government "cannot submit to the curtailment of its neutral rights," further subordination of its rights and Ambassador Page to whom the note was sent by special messenger for in order that I may gather my corn delivery to the London foreign of and sow my small grain. was instructed by Secretary Lansing "to impress most earnestly upon the British government that the United States "must insist the rela-tions between it and his majesty's government be governed, not by a policy of expediency but by those es-tablished rules of international conduct to which Great Britain in the past has held the United States to account when the latter nation was a belligerent engaged in a struggle for national existence." Declaring the United States "unhesitatingly assumes" the task of championing the integrity of neutral rights, the note proclaims that the American government will devote its energies to the task, exercising always an imperial attitude.

The note, nearly 15,000 words in length, was made public by agreement between the state department and the British foreign office. It carried with it a voluminous appendix giving the text of American naval instructions issued in 1862 and a sum-mary and table showing hundreds of vessels detained by British authorities since the beginning of the present war. The body of the note is divided into 35 points, dealing with all phases of the contraband question, seizures and detentions, prior to, as well as after, the so-called blockade was in-stituted, and announces that a separate communication will be sent soon dealing particularly with the "pro-priety and right of the British government to include in their list contraband or war certain articles which have been so included."

In conclusion after an argument on the law and facts, Secretary

Lansing says:
"I believe it has been conclusively shown that the methods sought to be employed by Great Britain to obtain and use evidence of enemy destination of cargoes bound for neutral ports and to impose a contraband character upon such cargoes are without justification; that the blockade, upon which such methods are partly founded is ineffective, illegal, and indefensible; that the judicial procedure for an international injury is inherently defective for the purpose; and that in many cases jurisdiction is asserted in violation When you need any of the laws of nations. The United under the heading of Farm Supplies States therefore, cannot submit to you will find it here, and just rememthe curtailment of its neutral rights ber that we buy all such supplies in by these measures, which are adquantities large enough to get the mittedly retaliatory, and therefore illegal, in conception and in nature, make you prices accordingly. and intended to punish the enemies of Great Britain for alleged illegali-

The note is dated October 21, and 10, June 22, July 23, July 31, (two), August 13, and a note verbal of the British embassy of August 6, all of which relate to restrictions upon American commerce. The United States says at the outset that it has delayed answering these notes in the hope that the announced purpose of Great Britain "to exercise their bel- feeds that will put fat on hogs as fast sideration for the interests of neutrals," and of causing "the least possible amount of inconvenience to persons engaged in legitimate trade," would in practice not unjustifiably infringe upon the neutral rights of American upon the neutral rights of American itizens.

"It is therefore a matter of regret," says the note, "that this hope has not been realized, but that on the contrary, interferences with American ships an cargoes destined in good faith to neu-tral ports and lawfully entitled to proceed have become increasingly vexations, causing American ship-owners and American merchants to complain to this government of the failure to take steps to prevent an exercise of belligerent power in contravention of their just rights. As the measures complained of proceed directly from government directs the attention of his majesty's government to the follow ing considerations."

Look at the men who are successful in the eyes of the world. Ninety-nine out of every hundred started a Bank Account when they were young-and Account when they were young—and stuck to it.

And now, look at the failures. Very few of them have a Bank account now. Not speaking of when they were young. Perhaps you think you have not enough money to start an account. Haven't you a dollar? That's all it takes
